Panhandle Football Man To Move; No Action Taken for Assistant

Canyon High School has a new head coach.

William C. (Bill) Davis Jr. of Panhandle was named to the position at a meeting of the school board Tuesday night. He will take the post vacated by Guy Harrison Jan. 23, when he resigned to move to Gladewater as head coach. Davis, 26, has been head coach at Panhandle for the past two football seasons, building the Class A team in those two years to a contender for the district title. During the last season his team won eight games, and lost two, one to the Class A state champions, Stinnett.

BILL DAVIS

When notified of his appointment Tuesday night, Davis said, "I just hope I can do the job you folks want. I'll sure work at it."

The son of W. C. Davis, superintendent of schools at Memphis, the new head coach was graduated from Memphis High School and attended Hardin-Simmons University beginning in 1948. Majoring in chemistry and minoring in physical education, Davis was graduated from H-SU in 1952.

He began working for Phillips Chemical Company as a chemist in Cactus following his graduation and during the 1953 season, Davis coached the sixth grade team outside his regular work with Phillips.

Davis decided to become a coach after working as a chemist for two years, and got a job as assistant under Pat Gerald in Sweetwater.

Staying there one year, Davis moved to Panhandle as head coach in time for the 1955 season. His first year in Panhandle, the football team won six games and lost four.

During Davis' second year, the 1956 season, Panhandle lost to Wellington in Class AA by 25-7, and to Stinnett by 13-0, the lowest score by which Stinnett won a game last year.

Wins by Panhandle last year include McLean, 20-0; Lefors, 33-0; Gruver, 53-0; White Deer, 54-20; Memphis, 34-6; Clarendon, 26-13; Canadian, 34-7; and Sunray, 53-8.

While at Hardin-Simmons, Davis played fullback for four years. As a senior, he carried the ball 102 times and gained 538 yards, an average of 5.27 yards per try. He scored seven touchdowns that season.

Davis is married, and he and his wife have one daughter, seven-months-old Sharlu.

They are members of the First Baptist Church in Panhandle and Davis is a member of the Lions Club there. He is a 1st lieutenant in the National Guard.

The school board did not take any action on hiring an assistant coach to replace Forrest Faver, who leaves this spring to join Harrison in Gladewater.

City Adopts Health Unit Ordinance

An ordinance setting up the Bi-County Health Unit was adopted last week by the Canyon City Commission which indicates the city's intention to participate in the unit.

The ordinance is similar to one adopted by the Amarillo City Commission recently. It sets up the organizational framework of the unit and provides for the office of director of the health unit.

The ordinance has been approved by the Potter County Commissioners Court and lacks only the approval of the Randall County Commissioners Court before going into operation.

The health unit will be governed by a body of seven citizens who will be appointed by the four governments. Three will be appointed by Amarillo, two by Potter County and one each by Canyon and Randall County.

In passing the ordinance, the city commission said that if at a later date the cost becomes prohibitive, it might become necessary to drop out of the unit.

Under terms of the ordinance, the seven-man health board would employ the director and supervise the operation of the unit. The board would act in an advisory capacity to the two cities and the two counties in public health.

None of the seven persons appointed to the board will receive any pay. Under terms of the ordinance, any person who is a resident of the respective areas may be appointed to the board, except that the one appointed by Randall County must be a layman, while some of those appointed by the other governing bodies may be doctors.

In other business at the meeting, the city commission denied a petition by property owners that 27th Street between Fifth and Sixth Avenues be closed. At present, no street exists there, although one has been dedicated.

The commission denied the petition because closing the street would at a later date bottle up traffic south of Sixth Avenue to 27th Street. None of the area is heavily developed at the present time, but the commission felt that any future development would be held back if the street were closed.

The commission ordered that four street lights be installed in the vicinity of the elementary school. The lights were requested recently by the school board and the installation had been approved by Southwestern Public Service Company.

The commission also voted to send Water Superintendent Glenn Sparkman to a water works short course at Texas A&M in March. The course will be one week long.

A bid of $233 for supplying four truck tires was accepted by the commission. The bid, lowest of four submitted, was from Griffin's truck stop.

In a special meeting Monday afternoon, the commission worked on a salary schedule for city employees which would classify each type of work and provide a set salary for each classification according to length of service for employees.

Bid 84?

Most anyone can see that this is a good start on a 42 hand. For views of a domino tournament at Fairview see page four of the first section.

$30 Comes from Highway Litter

Pop and milk bottles picked up along the highways in Randall County paid off for the March of Dimes.

Highway department employees donated $30 to the polio fund from sale of bottles they had picked up along the highways. As the bottles were collected and sold, the money was put in a fund and donated to the March of Dimes.

E-way Auction Here Saturday

The county auction of surplus expressway property, the old tax office building and home in Amarillo and the old jail building in Canyon will begin at 1:30 p. m. Saturday in the courthouse here.

Items which are to be sold have been marked by Nelson Auction Service and handbills are available. Prospective bidders should inspect the property prior to the sale.

Game Night Is Slated Saturday

Plans were completed Friday for the Junior Woman's Book Club game night Feb. 16. Activities will begin at 8 p. m. in the grade school cafeteria and tickets, which are being sold by club members, are 50 cents.

Pies and cakes will be sold at game night by club women. Coffee is free. Club members are requested to bring pies and cakes to the cafeteria around 5 p. m.

The program last Friday on flower arrangements for a happier home, was given by H. R. Fulton Jr. of H. R.'s Greenhouse. After telling of the special sentimentality flowers hold in different occasions and the pleasure they can give everyday in the home, he discussed the principles of flower arranging.

Proportion, balance, a focal point, blend of texture, color and rhythm according to line were some of the points that must be considered in corrert flower arrangement, he said.

In explaining a triangular range of pattern, Fulton said, "In most critics' opinion, this is considered the most artistic arrangement."

He explained the pattern used in two previously made flower arrangements, and then made a Valentine arrangement and turquoise buffet style arrangement to illustrate other rules of flower arranging.

Membership Report Due Thursday Noon

A report on the results of the membership drive that has been conducted since the first of the month will be made at a meeting of the Canyon Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors at noon Thursday.

The entire board composed the membership committee and C. E. Thompson acted as chairman. The drive began Feb. 1 when each of the board members took a list of businesses and professional men who are not members of the chamber.

Each was to contact as many on his list as possible by this Thursday. The committee will continue to contact those who were missed earlier.

A list of projects for the coming year has been turned over to committees, and those items will be considered as well as others which might come up at a later date.

Anyone who was missed during the first part of the membership drive should contact the chamber office.

Sends Liquor Ocean To Control Board

Enough liquor to float at least a small battleship was turned over to the State Liquor Control Board last week by Randall County Sheriff L. S. Johnston.

The liquor, in the form of beer and wine, was taken from transporters arrested by the sheriff's department for illegally moving the intoxicants through the county. The load sent last week was the first turned over to the Liquor Control Board in about a year.

Sheriff Johnston said it takes about a year to collect enough to make a truck load. The goods seized must be held until after the trial of the transporter so it may be used as evidence.

Sent to Amarillo were 1,376 bottles of beer, 11 quarts and 213 pints of wine.

National Guard Has Open House

In connection with the recruiting drive this month, Company F of the 142nd Infantry Regiment will have an open house Sunday from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Included in the festivities of the day will be a display of equipment used by the company. The public is invited to drop in at the armory east of Canyon anytime during the day.

Sue Hite Slates Pancake Supper

A pancake supper to benefit the Girl Scouts and the Randall County Library is slated for Feb. 20 at the American Legion Hall. The Sue Hite Club will sponsor the supper.

Tickets for the supper, which is from 6 p. m. to 9 p. m. are 25 cents for pre-school children and 50 cents for all others, and may be purchased at the door or from any of the club members earlier. The Aunt Jemima company is donating the flour, and all other supplies will be donated.

Church Plans Final Services in Old Building Before Making Move

The last services in the Assembly of God Church at 501 Sixth Avenue will be held this Sunday with two special sermons scheduled in honor of the move to the new building on 23rd Street.

The Rev. Mrs. A. J. Pettit will speak on "Small Things" at the morning service, beginning at 11 a. m.

The Rev. A. J. Pettit will speak on "This Ole House" at the evening service, which begins at 7 p. m.

Special music and singing at both the morning and evening services will be filmed in color.

The church has issued an invitation to everyone in the area to attend the services. A formal announcement of the move to the new church building will be published soon.

Farm Bureau Man Joins Ag Faculty

Joe Ed Sullivan, Texas Farm Bureau organizational director for the past year, has been appointed instructor in agriculture and dairyman at West Texas State College. He assumed duties for the spring semester, according to President James P. Cornette.

Sullivan replaces Ralph Harbin, member of the agriculture faculty since 1954, has been granted a leave of absence for advanced study at Texas Tech.

With Canyon as headquarters, Sullivan has worked with the Farm Bureau in a public relations post, organizing bureaus in the 29 counties of the Panhandle.

A native of Morton, Sullivan received his B.S. degree in agriculture and his M.Ed degree from Sam Houston State Teachers College. He also attended Texas Tech.

While at Sam Houston, Sullivan was an All-College Favorite, was named to "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges," and was King of Coronation his senior year. The latter honor is awarded annually at Sam Houston and is the highest honor paid to a male student.

Sullivan taught for more than a year at Hinsdale, Mont., in the Veterans Instructional Farm Training Program.

Westside HD Club Sponsors Salk Vaccine Shots for Entire County

All residents of Randall County will have the opportunity in the near future to be innoculated with Salk vaccine at a minimum price of $1. But this price will be offered, same for both children and adults, on only one day.

The day and time of innoculation is to be set some time next week by Westside Home Demonstration Club women who are sponsoring the project with the advice of doctors from Neblett Hospital and the Medical and Dental Clinic.

Dr. Robert P. Jarrett, county health officer, said that the vaccine was being offered at a minimum price in hope that it would encourage more people to receive the shot series.

The idea for the project was born when the Westside HD Club women investigated the possibility of having club women innoculated as a unit on a certain day.

"We felt that women might get the shots if everyone decided to get them together at a certain time," said Mrs. Ray Metcalf, president.

She inquired about the possibility of a group innoculation at Neblett Hospital; doctors in both the hospital and clinic conferred and told Mrs. Metcalf that a county-wide innoculation would be possible at a minimum price if the women would care to sponsor the project.

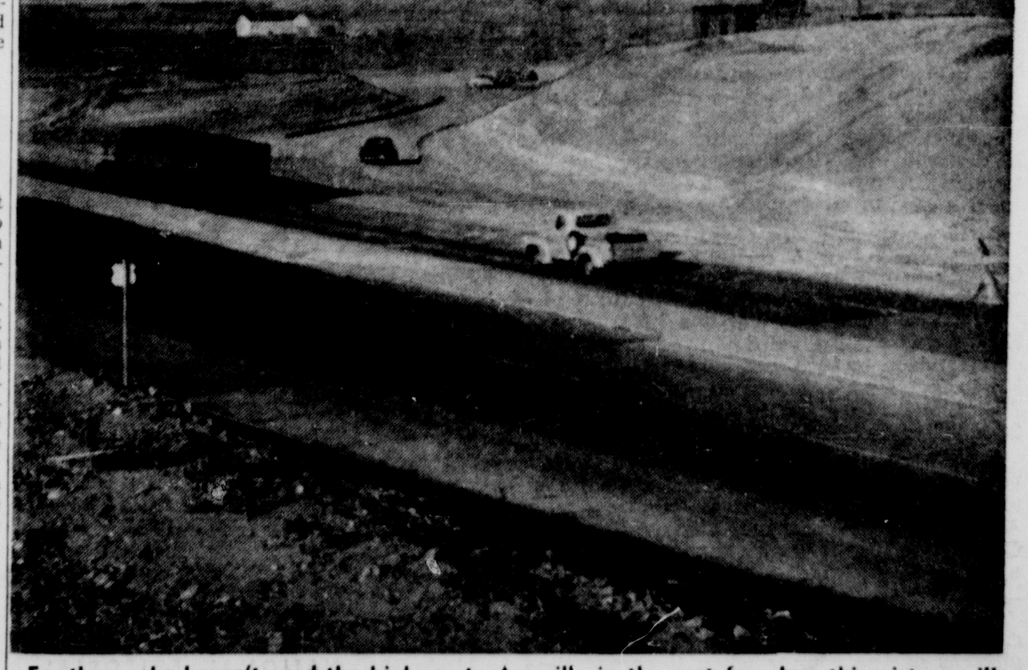
At club meeting Feb. 6, the idea was presented to the 18 Westside members and they voted to give their support.

Dr. Jarrett stressed that those interested in receiving the innoculation at the minimum rate, keep in mind that it will be offered only the day set, not on the day after.

One of the families connected with the Westside club has been touched by polio, and this, said Mrs. Metcalf, has helped the women to realize how deadly polio is and how important it is to get the shots. "Especially before summer gets here," she said.

Shots begun before summer, the sooner the better, will be much more effective than those started near the summer season. Those started in the summer may not be in time to prevent polio.

Highway Diggings



For those who haven't used the highway to Amarillo in the past few days this picture will come as a shock. Cutting a channel through the hill by the underpass, the highway builders have dug below the present level of the highway at the north end. The channel is for a road which will be below the ground level and will pass under the main highway.

Little League Success in Sight; Organizational Meeting Monday

Success seems assured in the drive for funds to establish Little League Baseball in Canyon following a report Monday night of solicitations during the past week.

Individual memberships go on sale today at $5 each, and those who wish to become charter members of the Canyon Little League Association must act quickly.

A meeting of members and interested adults will be held Monday night to permanently organize the association. Up to now, the organization has been existing on a temporary basis.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p. m. in the fieldhouse at West Texas' State College.

Groups of booklets with membership cards were distributed to workers Tuesday night, and the workers are to offer memberships beginning today.

The permanent organization of the League will be charged with obtaining a franchise from Little League Baseball, Inc., and with setting up the program in Canyon. It will be concerned with building the park, which will be situated on school property at the elementary school, outfitting the players with uniforms and providing equipment.

The permanent group will select team managers and decide on the method of player option and other regulations.

In order to be franchised for the 1957 season, the League must be organized and an application be sent in by the end of March.

Anyone who is interested in baseball for youngsters of Randall County is invited to attend the organizational meeting Monday night.

"Directors of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, meeting this morning, reluctantly sliced $2,000 off the proposed budget for 1957 in the face of sharply lagging membership pledges.

"Although the 1957 membership drive, launched Tuesday morning by a score of solicitors, is still not completed, enough returns had been tabulated today to make it obvious that 1957 memberships are going to fall short of the $6,546 goal set earlier for the year's budget.

"Two major promotional items were sliced out of the budget in an effort to bring proposed expenditures in line with projected income . . .

"Left in the budget for 1957 were only the regular Chamber of Commerce promotions, including the annual 4-H Club-FFA Livestock show, which has already been held; the annual Christmas program, the annual Old-Timers Reunion, Quarterhorse show, and Hobby show, and small appropriations for highway and industrial promotions and advertising . . ."

That's good news to spring on an unsuspecting township, isn't it? But that is what The Canadian Record had to tell its readers, and it could be the story The Canyon News has to tell its readers.

The Canyon Chamber of Commerce is in the midst of its annual membership drive, but the chamber is really wanting more than your money. What the chamber wants is a little of your time and energy, and that's what it really and truly needs.

Pretty nearly every week of the year, everyone in Canyon thinks of some small thing that could be done to make this a better place to live. Lots of times, the thought appears, then sort of goes away. Other times, you remember long enough to mention it over the dinner table. And even occasionally it gets spread around in public—but more often than not the idea dies away for lack of action.

It's pretty hard for one person to take any action on a project that would benefit the city. It generally takes some concerted action, the work and thoughts of several people.

The Chamber of Commerce in any city is an organization set up to bring action on ideas that will benefit the growth and pleasure of the city. But it's no good, it has no worth at all, unless the people of the city stand ready to do a little work.

So here's the proposal. Set aside a small amount of money for the Canyon Chamber of Commerce, for your membership fee, and set aside a small amount of your time and energy, to make your membership fee become an investment instead of a donation.

If you are not already a member of the chamber, be ready to accept your responsibility when a member of the board of directors comes to see you. If you are a member, let the chamber know you are ready to do some of the work. Tell the chamber you'd like to help on one of the committees. It won't take much of your time, and it should return good interest on your principal.

If this hasn't been the oddest winter. I've a forsythia bush that's blooming, or at least it was last week, and there are more all over town. Just think, only a year ago, the little bush that blooms at our house was pretty well covered with snow. I've a feeling that the brave forsythia will be stripped by Jack Frost before long.

Well, sir, now. Isn't this something. One of the dog food companies is trying to promote the idea of each state selecting an "official" dog, just like state flowers and birds.

This company wants people to write letters telling which breed of dog they would prefer and what the reasons are behind their choice.

They think that some states would have it easy. Such as Massachusetts, with the Boston Terrier, and Maryland, with the Chesapeake Bay Retriever.

If we're gonna pick an "official" dog, why not go all the way and pick a cat, hog, cow, wheat strain, kind of cotton, chemical constitution of oil, brand of automobile, breed of horse and type of cloud from which we prefer rain?

The Austin State School for Mentally Retarded Children got hold of a set of church chimes one time, and found that playing those chimes helped the children—and to make a long story short, the employees of the school and others interested chipped in and bought the chimes.

That brought about the idea of having a non-sectarian chapel in the hope that it would help those children, but no money was available for such a project. Those in Austin who have the school's interests at heart have been trying to raise the money by public subscription, but that has been fairly unsuccessful.

They've finally hit upon this idea. There are some 1900 children in the school and the chapel will cost about $76,000—an average of $40 per child. Three of the children in the school are from Randall County, and the appeal is for the citizens of the county to kick in $120, a nominal enough sum.

If you are interested in the idea, send your contributions to: Chapel for the Children, City National Bank, Austin, Texas.

One night last week I drove to Amarillo around 7 p. m. and met 85 cars between the city limits of Canyon and the city limits of Amarillo, an average of just a bit over six per mile. On the way back around 10:30, I met 57 cars. Goodness, it's easy to see how the daily average is up around 7,000 on that highway.

You know, in the matter of expressways, we all talk of how quickly we can get from one place to another and all, but we're forgetting one thing. In order to get from Amarillo to Canyon in "10 or 12 minutes" we're going to have to break the speed limit considerably.

Look here, it's 14 miles from the city limits of Canyon to the city limits of Amarillo on the highway—by that, I mean there are 14 section lines between the two cities. In order to travel 14 miles at the legal speed limit, it takes 14 minutes and no less. If we get to making it from Amarillo to Canyon in 12 minutes, we're breaking the law.

And that's saying nothing at all about getting from Georgia Street on down into town. I don't see how we will be able to do it in much less than 18 or 19 minutes.

One afternoon, just for the heck of it, I left 9th and Harrison in Amarillo at 6 p. m. on the dot. I drove straight out Harrison to 36th and came on down to Canyon on the highway. I was careful to stay under the speed limit—I didn't get over 30 in Amarillo, 60 on the highway or 25 in Canyon—and it took me 23 minutes to get home.

Elsewhere in the paper this week is an explanation of the bill in the Legislature that calls for a constitutional amendment to allow the creation of a hospital district in Amarillo and several other things. It affects all of Randall County because it allows the Commissioners Court to levy a 10 cent per hundred tax on all of the county for the hospital district.

Ted Springer sent the bill at my request, and asked for comments on it. He would like to have the views of the citizens of the county when it comes time to study the bill in the legislative committee. Read the article, think on it and write Mr. Springer. You can write me, too, if you'd like.—BC

NEWS LETTER

FROM CONGRESSMAN WALTER ROGERS OF THE 18TH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT

Aid for Grasslands

The bill that was recently introduced by a large number of the Texas delegation in Congress, designed to establish a deferred grazing program and a protein feed program to supplement the relief available to drouth stricken areas, was reported favorably by the Committee on Agriculture yesterday morning.

However, the provision requiring the Secretary of Agriculture to include protein feed concentrates in the drouth feed program, was stricken from the bill. This means that the bill is now confined to the deferred grazing program which is, in effect, a soil conservation soil bank.

Grazing lands can be laid out for a period of not less than 12 consecutive months, and the rancher or farmer will receive payment at a rate not less than the average grazing rental value of the land.

We had hoped that both the grazing program and the inclusion of protein feed concentrates in the drouth feed program could be included in the same bill when it was acted on by the Committee, but the Committee decided to separate these items and approve only the deferred grazing program at the present time.

It can be expected that separate legislation will be introduced concerning the inclusion of protein feed concentrates in the drouth feed for livestock program, and every effort will be made by those of us whose districts have been stricken by the drouth for early action on such legislation.

In the meantime, we shall, of course, push forward for passage of the deferred grazing program and will probably have it through the House of Representatives before this letter reaches you.

Agricultural Labor Problems

Trouble is again brewing on the use of Mexican Nationals as agricultural workers in this country. Certain numbers of Mexican Nationals are allowed to work in this country under an agreement between this Government and the Government of Mexico.

Each year, controversies seem to arise with reference to this program. The need of these workers in agriculture in this country is readily admitted by all who are familiar with the circumstances involved.

However, the Department of Labor, each year, seems to want to engraft additional rules, requirements and regulations on American farmers using this type of labor. The unreasonableness of some of these proposed rules and regulations in past years certainly emphasizes the lack of understanding on the part of some of the Labor Department officials charged with administration of the program.

However, the new rules on housing and other matters which the Labor Department is now advocating are so unreasonable that they make the former unreasonable proposals seem sound.

The requirements for housing of these people who come over from Mexico to do work in this country, are nothing short of making American farmers provide hotel facilities, including maid and yard service.

It is the opinion of many that these unreasonable requirements that have been increasing each year are designed to be so rigid as to tender completely impractical the use of Mexican Nationals for agricultural labor purposes in this country. If this is the underlying design of anyone connected with this government, it should be brought out into the open.

The truth is that American labor is not injured by the importation of these workers to do seasonal agricultural work. The workers are paid a wage agreed upon between this Government and Mexico, and are not in any manner cheated or defrauded.

Actually it provides, or should provide, if the workers take the money home, a stimulation to the very poor general economy of these workers. This work provides a source of revenue for these workers that they could not obtain in any other place.

The farmers, in most instances, require their services because the crops are seasonal and must be harvested when they are ripe. For some strange reason, Nature has never seemed willing to submit to man-made laws or regulations of the Department of Labor.

No one should want to be unfair in the operations of these programs. With a sound, sensible approach, this program can be worked out to the benefit of all concerned. However, it could hardly be expected for the farmers, who have been the tragic victims of cost-price squeezes, to provide better living facilities for foreign nationals than they themselves will be able to enjoy if something isn't done about the agriculture picture in this country.

Dear Editor:

(With apologies to the good editor for disagreeing with him.)

Though she never again may rule the sea
A United Kingdom there will ever be.
It always happens when she's in travail,
Some tyro grabs and twists the lion's tail.
Although for them, things look rather blue,
She will manage somehow to muddle through.
Yes, old England will muddle through somehow
Despite the antics of the sacred cow,
The ultra-sacred cow of Texas oil,
Who want things done by their own rules of Hoyle.
When things look dark and sees we've reached the end,
And when a feller really needs a friend,
It seems that England, Israel and France
Still constitute our first line of defense.

I GIVE YOU TEXAS

By BOYCE HOUSE

Gov. Chas. H. Brough, who was Arkansas' chief executive from 1917 to 1921, had a remarkable memory for names and faces. He could meet a man one time and then, months later, when they met again, could call him by name.

I had this little story from Congressman Will Driver of Osceola many years ago. In Osceola there dwelt a butcher named Brown. One afternoon as he was closing for the day, Brown notcied a crowd at the station, so he strolled down. The train arrived, a distinguished-looking man alighted and began greeting citizens. He reached across a man's shoulder to grasp Brown's hand and said, heartily, "How are you, Mr. Brown—and how's the meat market?"

Later, the befuddled Brown asked a friend, "Who was the fellow who called me by name? I don't remember ever having met him." The friend replied, "That was Dr. Charles Hillman Brough, the governor."

Tax Deductions Cause Errors in Filing Income Tax Returns for US

This is the sixth in a series of 12 articles prepared by the Internal Revenue Service to assist taxpayers in avoiding tax audits. Thousands of taxpayers prepare tax returns each year containing questionable items which must be audited by the Internal Revenue Service.

Tax audits are costly to the taxpayer and the government. The Internal Revenue Service feels that a careful study of the tax instructions will enable taxpayers to prepare a correct tax return and, in some cases, pay less tax because he is able to take all the deductions to which he is entitled.

Here are the five most common reasons for the Internal Revenue Service having to adjust the deductions claimed by taxpayers for taxes:

(1) Federal excise taxes are not deductible unless they are incurred or paid in connection with a taxpayer's trade or business in the production or collection of income, or the management, conservation, or maintenance of property held for the production of income. Under no circumstances are Federal income taxes deductible.

(2) Title fees, auto inspection fees, parking meter charges, and other regulatory fees are not deductible as taxes. Charges for services such as water bills, or local benefits such as streets, sidewalks, etc., are not deductible.

(3) Non-business taxes are deductible only if a taxpayer itemizes the deductions on page 2 of Form 1040.

(4) State and local taxes with the exception of gasoline taxes and retail sales taxes are deductible as such only by the person upon whom they are imposed.

(5) The portion of property taxes allocable to that part of the property tax year preceding the sale is considered as imposed on the seller and is deductible by him. That portion allocable to that part of the property tax year beginning on date of sale is considered as imposed on the buyer and deductible by him.

Taxpayers with complex returns may find it advisable to consult a qualified tax practitioner for help in preparing his tax returns. The law requires every taxpayer to have adequate records to support his tax returns.

Taxpayers who keep good records for their business and for their personal affairs usually pay less tax than others. They check their records instead of their memory when they start preparing their tax return.

Record keeping is also beneficial in planning your personal affairs. If you have a good set of records, you will probably know how to meet your day-to-day financial problems.

In the next article, we will discuss errors taxpayers made in claiming deductions for medical expenses.

on which you ride came from upper Missouri; the saddle that surmounts him came from Trenton, N. J.; the hat on your head came from Danbury, Conn.; the boots you wear came from Lynn, Mass.; the linen in your shirt is Irish and Boston made it up; your broadcloth coat is of Lowell manufacture and was cut in New York; and if today you surrender what you wear that was made in the 'd—— North,' you would be stark naked."

The shortest short story I ever read was written by Kin Hubbard (otherwise Abe Martin). It was just one sentence long yet it tells it all—(I give the story from memory):

"Albert Winks, the banker, reports his new Cadillac stolen Sunday from in front of the county poor farm, where he was visiting his mother."

SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

OUR SOIL ★ OUR STRENGTH

The regular meeting of the Board of Supervisors of the Randall-Potter Soil Conservation District was held Tuesday night, Feb. 5, in the Randall County court house.

Present were J. W. Spencer, C. V. Conatser, R. C. Sampson Jr., Frank Begert and Joe Batson S.C.S.

J. W. Spencer gave an interesting talk on his trip to the state convention of Soil Conservation Districts held in Tyler.

The board approved cooperative agreements with the following farmers: Earl White and W. T. Smoot, Ross White and W. T. Smoot, M. K. Bingham and Jacky Meeks, John L. Butler and J. W. Byrd. The board is interested in obtaining new cooperators.

Any farmer who wants to cooperate with the district in soil and water conservation should contact one of the board members or Joe Batson.

There isn't any charge in becoming a cooperator and all cooperators get the services of the district and the Soil Conservation Service free of charge. All agreements written between farmers and the district are approved or disapproved by the board of supervisors of the Randall-Potter Soil Conservation District.

"My ELECTRIC clothes dryer saves money because we need fewer clothes for my growing children!"

SAYS Mrs. W. J. MESSICK 119 TEXAS HEREFORD, TEXAS

MRS. MESSICK says, "The dryer saves ironing and even those things which do need ironing can be dried to correct dampness for proper ironing." No need for extra sprinkling.

Mrs. Messick stresses the savings with her electric appliances saying, "Savings in time and money are the foremost benefits we receive from our electric appliances." She finds that by the fast drying time an electric clothes dryer gives, she needs fewer clothes for the children. "Since children 'grow out' of clothes so quickly these savings become important," she adds.

Why don't you start "sitting pretty" with your own electric clothes dryer. You, too, will find the same advantages which Mrs. Messick likes.

Fairview Gets Set To Play Dominoes

Once each year the members of the farming community of Fairview get together for a four-week long 42 tournament in the community building. Each Saturday night during the tournament, the contestants gather early and play late. Each has his own score card on which he keeps the number of games he has won, and at the end of the fourth night the player with the greatest number of games won is the top man in the tournament. Play on each night is in progressive style, with no two persons staying partners as they move from table to table.

Good Will Is Shown

Our real character shows up when nobody is looking! This seems particularly to fit a certain class of drivers who obey traffic regulations when an officer is nearby but who whiz by the stop sign the minute all is clear.

Auto accidents are chiefly caused by just such bad attitudes and personality quirks—not by a lack of knowledge or skill.

Just as faulty health habits result in illness so may defective driving habits be illustrated as the forerunners of accidents. Faulty driver behavior, violation of regulations and bad driving practices were the basic causes of 70 to 80 per cent of last year's fatal accidents. Mechanical failure, bad road and weather conditions were responsible for only 20 per cent.

Some figures will easily show the enormity of the auto accident problem. Radar studies by the Center for Safety Education show that in several states 90 per cent of the drivers checked under certain conditions were violating speed regulations. The American Automobile Association made a study of 10,000 drivers in which it stated that a driver who operates a car 10,000 miles a year would make about 25,000 errors annually.

The most menacing number of all is the number of traffic deaths estimated this year—41,000!

How can we decrease this number? By improving our driving attitudes, by taking driver education courses, by remembering the golden rule and by making safe driving popular we can make sure that we in CHS do not contribute to the awful statistics marked up by highway fatalities.

Safeness Is Popular

It seems good will is just popping out all over, for sincere efforts are being made by various classes and organizations to help Eugene Pearce in his time of illness.

Not every day do we find a chance to do a great thing, but frequently opportunity knocks at our door, giving us a chance to do a small deed in a great way.

When away from friends it is good to be remembered just as Eugene has experienced. Jolly get-well cards, a big Valentine box filled with humorous, cheerie cards, letters and flowers are just a few of the ways to mention the good wishes being sent his way. Surprises in the form of a gift a day will help make each day something to look forward to, and it will be a constant reminder that we are thinking of him.

Here is our chance to really put out our best efforts and prove the bigness of our hearts and our school. No words can tell the love and appreciation which may be planted in the heart of one who is the recipient of such gestures.

Although each person's contribution may be small, just a card or a letter, it will have served its purpose. Just imagine yourself in a similar situation receiving some 300 cards, letters, etc., from our friends.

If each of us in Canyon High School will help, Eugene will receive such a flood of mail that he will never have a dreary day.

Recall the Serbian proverb which says, "Do a good deed and throw it into the sea; it won't sink."

Entering Contests?

When the district Interscholastic League contests come up, are you going to wish that you could enter something?

Well, there is some type of contest for everyone. There's track for the athletically inclined. Mathematicians may compete in the numbers sense contest. Those who are interested in the histrionics have the one-act play contest. English skills will be tested in the various literary contests.

But if one is interested in entering the contests, now is the time to start working. The district events are just over a month away. Starting now won't give one much time, but that is more time than one would have if one waited till the last minute to decide to enter. A little practice does a lot to aid in winning a contest. There are a very few people who can win a contest without any preparation.

Will you be my valentine?

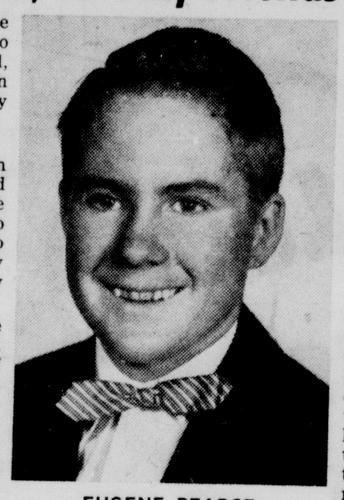
Experiences of Eugene Pearce, Honorary Favorite, Told by Friends



EUGENE PEARCE

Ronald and Tony Bourland were sitting and fighting over who would tell their one and only pal, Eugene Pearce, he had just been elected the sophomore honorary class favorite.

Soon they were reminiscing.

Eugene was always getting them stuck in the snow. They would try to dig holes hoping that the tractor would roll down hill so they wouldn't have to push so much, because they had already had to push it more than they had ridden.

Ronald recalls an experience he and Eugene had at Jess' stables. They got an old horse, about half horse and half mule, and stood around and dared each other to ride her backwards. Eugene finally gave in, got on her, and kicked her in the flank. He was immediately bucked off. Ronald then decided to take a stab at it. He got on—then Eugene got a stick and chased them all over the place. Ronald was about halfway crying and mad, and Eugene was impishly laughing. But, you know they just couldn't stay mad at each other.

One Sunday afternoon Eugene came to Canyon for a date. He and the girl decided to go to Amarillo to see some kids they knew. Everything went fine until their return to Canyon. They were coming back from the Village Drive-In when all of a sudden there was a big crash. Eugene just knew the motor had dropped out of the car and the whole thing was falling apart. He stopped the car and ran back down the highway. When he came back he had a little piece of steel he had run over by accident. How could it make that much noise!

Once he got the urge to put duals on his car and his parents gave their consent to the idea. Only one person stayed on with him through the operation, Blondie or Tony to you. They finally got the duals on after a few bruised knuckles and skinned hands. After they had gone through all the trouble to get them on, someone made a special request that he take them off. They were a little too loud. So old faithful Eugene took the loud ones off and replaced them with some that were not quite so loud. Everyone was satisfied then, of course, but Eugene. He wasn't just rejoicing over the matter, but he got over it.

Eugene and Ronald were riding an old horse, Paint. He shied at a piece of paper, reared up and threw both of them. They got mad and decided to fix him. They got a buggy whip, but he looked so innocent—they lost their nerve.

Tony says one night he and Eugene were sleeping outside, so they could get up early and have a big day. About 3 o'clock in the morning, Eugene's dog, Mac, a big old lazy, fat English bulldog, got in high spirits and took about 25 paces down the side of the yard. All of a sudden he turned around and charged. About the time he got five paces from them, Tony ducked into the bottom of his bedroll. As he ducked down he saw Mac make a wild leap and land in the middle of the sleepy Eugene. After a while Tony stuck his head out to see where Mac was. No Mac. No Eugene. He didn't even see them, but there were two lumps in the bottom of Eugene's bedroll. Sound asleep it seemed, like brothers.

Wilbanks Accents Character in Talk

Character is what one is when no one is looking or when one is in the dark according to the speech of Rev. Winston Wilbanks, minister of the First Presbyterian Church, on Feb. 6. This assembly was given by the CCYC, and Leo Rigsby, president, introduced the speaker.

Rev. Wilbanks delved into the importance of good character and the way humans react to pressure. In the Korean War one-third of the American soldiers collaborated with the Communists, one-third died and one-third survived. The action of this cross-section of boys was comparable to the strength of the students in CHS, he said. American character is different from that of the Turk, for not a Turk succumbed.

He emphasized that nearly anyone will surrender his stand when the pressure becomes great enough or is applied to our weakest spot. The only way to withstand pressure is to have a strong character to act as a brace from within.

Atoms, Ecology Meeting Topics

Officers for the second semester Science Club are John Robert Wheelock, president; Kenneth Engle, vice president; Jim Fanning, secretary; Jerry Parker, treasurer; and Mary Whealy, social chairman.

Guest speaker for the Jan. 24 meeting of the club was Dr. J. S. Urban, head of the physics department at WT. He spoke on cosmic rays and told how the atom was discovered and split. About 30 members were present at the home of Mary Whealy.

Speakers for the evening of Feb. 7 at the home of Dr. Leta Boswell were Dr. Donald W. Tinkle and Robert Weldo, who are in the biology department at WT.

They spoke on ecology, biology dealing with the relations between organisms and their environments, and taxonomy, classification of animals and plants according to their natural relationship. Dr. Tinkle also showed some slides to illustrate the subjects.

My Will

I only ask that when I die,
You carry me back to Canyon High.
Lay my biology book on my chest,
Tell Mrs. Findley I did my best.
Lay my history book at my feet,
Tell Mrs. Sanders I suffered defeat.

Stack my homemaking book in my tomb,
Tell Mrs. Long I knew I was doomed.
Put my health book in my hand,
Tell Mrs. Graham I'm in a fairer land.
Place my geometry beneath my brow,
Tell Mr. Wells it's all over now.

Dust off my basketball now and then,
Tell Coach Brotherton I couldn't win.
Lay my library book over my heart,
Tell Mrs. Gilmore we'll never part.
Lay my typewriter by my side,
Tell Mr. Schuette I'm glad I died.
Lay my English book at my head,
Tell Mrs. Beard that's why I'm dead.

We should be content with what we have—not what we are.

Beethoven wrote some of his greatest music after becoming deaf.

Henson Valuable Choir Member

Justly so, Beverly Henson was elected the most valuable choir member of CHS Feb. 9 for today she leaves for the Texas Music Conference held in Dallas. Earlier in the year she was chosen as an All-State Choir representative from District 11.

"Henson," as her friends call her, was in the All-State Choir last year also. In choir she is the historian-reporter. Beverly was chosen the Girl of the Month in FHA, is the song leader of the club, has achieved her junior and chapter degrees and is working toward her state degree in homemaking. She is also a member of the National Honor Society.

Beverly will be accompanied by Miss Ada V. Clark, CHS choir director, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Henson.

Numbers by the All-State Choir will be directed by Dr. Charles C. Hirt, director of the First Presbyterian Choir of Hollywood, Calif.

Songs he will direct are "Ehe Sei Dir, Christe" (Christ Be Thine The Glory), "Cantate Domino," "Let Thy Holy Presence," "The Death of Nathan Hale," "There Is a Ladye," "I Hear a Voice a-Prayin'" and "Deo Gracias." Music Makers Are No Lazybones

A combined concert was presented Thursday, Jan. 31, in the auditorium by the band and choir.

The choir sang "God So Loved the World," "Cantate Domino," "My God and I," "No Man Is an Island" and "Barefoot." The band played "Storm King March," "Andante," "La Siesta," "Theme in E flat" and "Goofin'."

The band and choir also did two numbers together. They were "A Tribute to Romberg" and "The Nation's Creed."

A band clinic was held Jan. 28.

The next few months will be busy ones for the band. On March 19, a concert will be presented with the other Canyon bands. On March 28, the band will participate in a contest at Borger, and on April 5 the band will have a banquet. The band queen will be crowned at the formal affair. It will be contest time again on April 25-26 at WTSC.

Bible Presented

As the sun's rays shown in the front doors at CHS Jan. 31 they danced upon a large mirror which is inside the door. Just in front of the mirror is a small table, standing about three and a half feet tall. On the table is a large black book—the most treasured, the best loved, the most widely read book in history . . . the Bible.

The students now have the privilige of using this book during school. The Bible is bound in black leather, and it has gold-edged leaves. There is a blue ribbon for a marker. In the Bible are charts, special features, prayers and character analysis. The Bible also has a large selection of maps.

Stories, Issues In PHSPA Contest

Stories and entire issues of The Eagle's Tale will be entered in the Panhandle High School Press Association contests. Winners of the contests will be announced at the district meeting to be held March 19 at West Texas State College.

Individual contests are sports story, sports column, news story, feature, editorial, general column, advertising and photography. Three issues of The Eagle's Tale will be entered in the Community Page Division (a division to determine the general excellence of school papers printed in the town paper).

The Eagle's Tale has won the 1952 Community Service Award and the 1956 general excellence in the community page division trophy.

Prior to the luncheon, at which the winners will be announced, workshops to improve the quality of high school journalism and the election of officers will take place.

Giving to Pearce Pleases Students

There is always a joy and feeling of satisfaction when one gives aid and remembers another in need.

The student body is going all out in its effort to show Eugene Pearce, a student of CHS who has been ill and out of school, their appreciation for his companionship to share with him seasonal cards, and, for the fun of it, to recall jolly times with friends.

Several of his friends met and talked over amusing experiences they had enjoyed with Eugene. Some of the incidents were prepared for publication in this issue. Karen Parker, Tony Marsalis and Ronald Bourland recalled the original story and Billy Weddington rewrote their stories for the staff before being published.

The SFC collected gifts to be sent Eugene at the rate of one a day to make a bright spot in each day.

Science classes provided a Valentine box and students filled it with cards. When filled, the big box, fashioned like a bright Valentine and filled with small Valentines bearing jolly wishes, was sent to Eugene.

Eugene entered CHS at the start of the '55-56 term, and he plans to be a chemical engineer. His mother is a teacher and his father works for the railroad.

A letter is always fun to receive. Hunt up his address elsewhere in this issue and write one.

Future Teachers Attend Reception

A reception was held in Amarillo High School cafeteria, Feb. 9, for the Future Teachers of the Panhandle. It was given by the Pi chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma of which Miss Marilyn A. Payne, CHS instructor, is president.

Speaker for the meeting was Mrs. Eunah Holden, executive secretary of the organization.

Students attending were Theresa Mickey, Dusty Hiltbrunner, Delores Wagner, Barbara Shepherd, and Wynona Yarbrough.

The FTA will meet in the home of Sue McClenny on Feb. 18. Mrs. Sidney Burgess, Mrs. Ora Mae Roberts, and Miss Sarah Thompson, elementary teachers, will be the speakers.

Her hobby is taking pictures and her pastime is reading and sewing. Her pet peeve is unfriendly people. Joyce also told the reporter that she likes the school system at CHS, the kids, teachers and everyone.

Spring Time Buds At FHA Banquet

Pots of gold at the end of a brilliant rainbow gave a wonderful idea to the annual FHA banquet Feb. 9 in the elementary school cafeteria. Springtime prevailed in the form of roses and greenery.

"Toward New Horizons," the FHA motto, was placed in bold red letters under the rainbow.

Wilford Taylor, senior, was named FHA Prince Charming. Wilford has charming manners, is polite, and courteous. Other candidates were Gerald Free, Eddie Boydstun, Richard Burgess, A. L. Pruett and Jim Fanning.

Rev. Winston Wilbanks, minister of the First Presbyterian Church, was guest speaker. "What Makes A Good Home" formed the basis of his speech. He presented marriage statistics which proved that God and love should be in the home.

Mary Gladys Marshall, toastmistress, was presented red roses by Pat Hardaway who also gave a summary of the activities in past years of FHA.

FHA members, their dates, parents, faculty members, etc., enjoyed a feast of barbecued beef, furnished by Underwood's of Amarillo.

Eight sophomore girls presented the emblem service, and the awarding of junior and chapter degrees took place.

Special music was furnished by Tom Langston. Mrs. H. R. Fulton sang "Over the Rainbow" and "I Love You," while John Wear entertained by singing and playing "Your Cheating Heart" and "When You Were A Tulip." Marcus Robinson gave a reading, "Ma and the Auto" by Edgar A. Guest.

Season Near End; Eagles Hustling

The scores by quarter were 11-9, 26-19, 34-35, 49-49. In the overtime play, Canyon tallied five points while holding Olton to three points. Statistics for the Olton game are:

Brotherton, Hinger, Leon Weaver and Boydstun teamed up their high totals and defeated Olton also this week. Bodkin with 10 points and Houston with 11 points were the high men for Olton.

The freshmen have also seen much action this past week. They defeated Happy 42-29. Pitt, Davis and Seals were high point grabbers for Canyon and Venhave and Bode were high for Happy. They also came out over Austin of Amarillo 43-35. Pitt and Davis again were high for Canyon and Nickleson and Avery were high for Austin.

Classes Schedule Many Activities

All classes held general meetings Jan. 29.

A class reporter and two Junior Red Cross representatives were elected by the seniors. Jackie Barnard was chosen reporter, and Roland O'Donald and Virginia Walker were selected Junior Red Cross representatives.

Plans for a chili supper and basketball game were outlined by a planning committee. The supper will be followed by a senior boys and men-of-the-town basketball game to raise money for the senior trip.

Square dancing, directed by Mr. and Mrs. Bedford Forrest, was the main attraction of the community recreation program Feb. 2.

WT Campus Will Look Like Fort Bliss When 4th Army General Arrives Here

The campus of West Texas State College will take on a decided military air Thursday when Lt. General J. H. Collier, 4th U. S. Army commander, arrives for special presentation ceremonies.

The general will be greeted on arrival by an honor guard from the WT Reserve Officers' Training Corps unit, and the more than 400 cadets who will hear his address, will be fully uniformed in Army Green.

Gen. Collier will present the WT cadet regiment with the nation's third college unit charter in the Association of the United States Army. The ceremonies will be held at 1:15 p. m. Thursday in the Administration Building auditorium, and the public is invited.

The college AUSA units, being established this year are designed to aid ROTC and military school cadets in professional Army careers, and will be collegiate professional societies, similar to departmental honorary groups. WT's group is the first west of the Mississippi River to be chartered.

Gen. Collier will be accompanied to Canyon by Col. J. D. Cone, chief of reservist units, Col. Raymond W. Darrah, chief of the ROTC division, and Maj. T. W. Flatley, the general's aide-de-camp.

The general's party will arrive at Amarillo Air Force Base at 11 a. m., and will be met by Mayor Art Jordan of Amarillo, Dr. Walter H. Juniper, dean of WT, and Lt. Col. Edward L. Lindsey, professor of military science and tactics.

The group will drive to Canyon for lunch before the presentation ceremonies. Gen. Collier will speak briefly at the program.

Dr. Juniper will introduce the general, who will present the AUSA charter to Cadet Lt. Col. Tommy Middleton of Canyon.

Bill Allows Hospital, Juvenile Court

A bill introduced in both houses of the State Legislature would call for a constitutional amendment to allow the creation of a hospital district for Amarillo that would have boundaries the same as the city limits.

Introduced in the Senate by Sen. Grady Hazlewood, the bill, known as Senate Joint Resolution No. 3, was referred to the committee on Constitutional Amendments and was reported out of committee favorably last week.

In the House, the bill was known as House Joint Resolution No. 7 and was introduced by Reps. Edgar Wilson and Ted Springer of Amarillo and Ballman of Borger. Rep. Springer is the representative of District 94F, the district of which Randall County is a part.

The bill would amend the constitution of the state to allow the legislature to authorize the creation of a "city-wide hospital district which shall always be co-extensive with the incorporated limits of Amarillo."

The district would have the power to issue bonds for the purchase, acquisition, construction, maintenance and operation of a hospital or hospital system. The bill would also allow the hospital district to levy a tax of 75 cents per hundred dollar valuation on all property within the limits of the district to pay off those bonds. The bill expressly sets out that only "property tax-paying voters in such city shall vote" at elections held for bonds.

The 75-cent tax would apply only to property within the city limits of Amarillo, and would be in addition to any city, school or county tax already levied. The bill would make it illegal, however, for the city to levy any other taxes to go for the support of the hospital.

At present, Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo is owned by Potter County and a part of the taxes paid on Potter County property goes to the support of the hospital.

In addition to providing that the property owners inside the city of Amarillo would pay a tax of 75 cents, the bill would "permit the counties of Potter and Randall, in which said town of Amarillo is located, to render financial aid to, and to further participate in the operation of such hospitals, and (the legislature) may authorize the Commissioners Courts to assess and levy taxes on all property outside the incorporated limits of such city not to exceed the rate of 10 cents on the 100 dollar valuation of all taxable property within such areas."

Apparently the bill would allow the 10-cent tax in addition to all other taxes presently allowed. In Randall County, those consist of the constitutional tax of 92 cents, the 30-cent special road and bridge tax authorized several years ago by the voters, and the 30-cent limit authorized by the voters to retire bonds issued for buying expressway right-of-way.

After providing for the creation and financing of the hospital district, the bill would allow Randall and Potter Counties to "establish, operate and maintain Courts of Domestic Relations, and Juvenile Courts, with jurisdiction co-extensive with the boundary lines of both of said counties, with full authority to handle all divorce actions and all matters pertaining to marital relations and juvenile delinquency, or other juvenile matters connected therewith, including the establishment and maintenance of a Juvenile Detention Home . . ."

The counties would have the further authority, in case such a court were created, to appoint clerks, officers, probation and parole officers and any other personnel necessary to operate and maintain such courts.

"The operation and maintenance of said courts shall be a tax not to exceed the sum of 10 cents per 100 dollars valuation on all the property in said counties, for that purpose only . . ." That 10-cent tax is not the same which would be allowed for the hospital district, but is a different tax.

At present, the juvenile and divorce matters are handled in this way. In Potter County, all juvenile matters are referred to the Potter County Domestic Relations Courts. Divorce matters can be handled in either of the district courts or in the Domestic Relations Courts. The county operates a Juvenile Detention home and employs a Juvenile Probation officer.

In Randall County, all juvenile matters are referred to the County Court. All divorce matters are filed in 47th District Court. The county does not have a detention home nor a special probation officer. Dr. Joe Findley, education professor at West Texas State, advises County Judge Roy Joe Stevens on juvenile matters and helps in straightening out juvenile troubles. Dr. Findley's work is a volunteer matter, and he is not paid.

The bill introduced in the Legislature states that the courts may not be established except after an election in which the voters of both of the counties approve. Also, the hospital district would have to be approved by the voters in both of the counties.

If the court setup is approved and the co-operative Domestic Relations court is set up, the bill would allow the Legislature to authorize county peace officers of both counties to carry out their "respective duties within the boundary limits of either or both counties."

Providing both the House and the Senate pass this bill, and it is signed by the governor, it would have to be approved by all the voters of the state at the general election in 1958. After that, the legislature would have to pass the necessary laws authorized by the constitutional amendment.

Then, the voters of Randall and Potter Counties would have to approve the various features, that is, the hospital district and the bi-county juvenile court.

Following the approval of the hospital district and juvenile court by the voters of both counties, the voters of the city of Amarillo would have to approve a bond issue to finance the hospital district. The bi-county court would be financed by the two counties.

Rep. Springer has asked for comments on the bill for his use when the bill is brought before a public hearing of the committee on Constitutional Amendments. He can be reached by writing him at the House of Representatives in Austin.

Council Discusses $5,000,000 Cut

At the meeting Feb. 6 of the Randall County Council of Home Demonstration Clubs in the Farm Bureau building, Mrs. Hal Zumwalt read a letter from the McKnight State Tuberculosis Hospital calling attention to the fact that the $5,000,000 yearly allocation from cigarette tax funds to the building program for state hospitals and special schools has been omitted from the appropriations bill now under consideration by the state Legislature.

It was stressed that if the funds were not continued, progress in these institutions will be "seriously curtailed, if not entirely halted." Club members were urged to write state senators and representatives insisting on reappropriation of these funds.

Twelve clubs reported at the council meeting presided over by Mrs. John Jennings, chairman. The recreation, the civil defense and education, the exhibit and the yearbook committees presented recommendations for the year's program of work.

Mrs. Earl Davis gave a talk on parliamentary procedure. Following the regular meeting of the council, Mrs. Roger Dugan was elected to be the 1958 THDA chairman for Randall County.

Mrs. Dugan presided over the election of delegates to the district THDA meeting to be held in Amarillo April 4. Elected were Mrs. John Jennings, Mrs. Ed Reynolds and Mrs. T. J. Brown.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Jelnek of the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, Mich., visited the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum last weekend. Mr. Jelnek, a teaching fellow in anthropology at the university, studied museum collections in preparation for the beginning of excavations of archaeological sites near Roswell, N. M.

Mrs. Nannie Waldron of Houston is making her home with her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Hutton.

Raymond T. Richey Adv.

Good soup, whenever and wherever it's found, is just about the best eating there is. Yet, with modern methods of canning, freezing, and drying ready-prepared foods, this rare commodity has almost gone out of existence.

We found some, one cold night last week, in a little restaurant-tearoom place, and realized how poor most of today's substitutes are. It was three-dimensional soup, with a rich, deep flavor that comes from long simmering of good stock, herbs and vegetables.

It reminded us of those long ago days when we'd come in from school on a frosty afternoon and smell soup cooking on the kitchen range. Soup — just soup — was a frequent evening menu when we were kids, probably because it was cheap. But to us it was as tantalizing and satisfying as the most expensive foods. As an aunt who used to visit us would say, "It sticks to your bones." At 12, we actually wept over poor Oliver Twist in Dickens' novel, whose gruel was always thin!

Although we lay no claim to cooking excellence, even our short-order kitchen can turn out a powerfully good potato soup. The recipe comes from an old cookbook, published long before short cuts became popular. We learned how to make it simply because we love the taste and can't find any ready made. But it practically takes an act of Congress to get us going on the project. The time required, even with a pressure cooker, seems endless, as do the pots and pans that clutter the kitchen before it gets to the table. So, along with most women today, we're guilty of ignoring good soup in meal-planning because we're just plain lazy.

About mousetraps we don't know but of one thing we're sure — there'll be a beaten path to the door of anyone who can, and will, serve good old-fashioned soup to all comers.

Cherry Blossoms

BY DOVIE CHERRY

A house that is meant for, and will give a heap of pleasure-filled living is the new home of the T. H. Lairs.

On the corner of Ninth Avenue and 25th Street, the house has been occupied by the Lairs for barely a month. The eight-room house with additional entrance room, hallway, utility room, two full baths and one half-bath, might swallow up some families, but it provides blessed leg-room for the four active Lair children.

"We're so thankful for the privacy it gives the kids," Shay said, referring to the bedrooms for the children. Rough-house activities were also taken into consideration when building. "Nothing is here that can't be played with," she said.

The Early American style, lots of pine wood and texture paper, gives the feeling of an invitation to come in, sit down and make yourself at home.

The two most appealing rooms in the house to me are the kitchen, big and roomy, and the den with a big fireplace and exposed pine beams. The den may be a man's den, built for easy, carefree living, but the kitchen is a woman's kitchen, built for the pleasure and convenience of its' 'star-roomer, namely Shay, as well as the rest of the family.

With the Lair's former residence next door, Shay could keep an eye on how things were progressing in the house, especially in the kitchen, where, bouquets to her, she got what she wanted.

And this includes cabinets and cabinet-tops custom-built to fit her height, and lots and lots of shelves and storage space. "In fact," laughed Shay, "We don't have enough to put in all of them."

Not seen in many modern day cabinets are the handy, old-fashioned-type flour and sugar containers with built-in sifter for the flour. Four lazy-suzan shelves provide ease in reaching such things as spices and seldom used pans. An electric mixer is quite out of the way on its special shelf that swings up to cabinet top level when needed and down under in the cabinet when not needed.

The dishwasher is built in, as is the electric range. And the wall oven, which really bakes, according to Shay, is large enough to hold six pies at once. Beneath the oven is a cove for a roll-away cart which holds dishes, silverware, napkins, food and lots of fun for the younguns.

The cabinets are of beautiful ash with Early American style gold fixtures.

At the west end of the kitchen is the everyday dining space, the table beneath windows which, in the future, will look out on the patio.

Do a left-face south, and you find yourself in the den. Between the kitchen and den are book shelves of an unusually soft-toned pine. The den features an east brick wall, where the fireplace is, and pine beams. The room, styled for all-purpose activities, has an eye-catching, gigantic wall map which, unbelievably, is wallpaper.

In both the den and kitchen are creme curtains with green appliques, more than 400 appliques, all done by Shay. She said it was quite a task, taking about four months.

Go through the swinging doors, and you are in the long hall papered in nomad and gold with two small old-fashioned lamps. The hall leads to the bedrooms.

First is Andrea's. Her bedroom will feature white, fluffy organdy curtains and a bed with a white quilted headboard and tufted bedspread.

Next is Tom Jr.'s, done in a red burlap texture paper that is so textury you want to touch it. His room has a peg board for such things as baseball mitts and skates.

On the far west end of the hall is toddler Ed and Jennie's room with paper, selected by Jennie, of brown bears on pink background. Aqua and white tiered curtains are at the windows.

All of the children's bedrooms have large closets with adjustable rods so that they will change from youngster's closets to grown-up closets as the children grow older.

In Tom and Shay's room is one of the biggest closets, maybe the biggest closet in town. In fact, when some people looked through the house when it was first under construction, they thought it was another room. It measures 8x7 and lucky Shay has room for everything.

Adjoining their room, which is painted in nomad with lots of gold and brown used in curtains and furnishings, is a bathroom of toast and nomad colors. A large mirror and numerous carved shelves make it pretty as well as practical.

The children's bathroom is of aqua and white tile with aqua and white tiered curtains and aqua ice-cream stool.

The living room and dining room are both painted in nomad, and Shay has used gold, brown and green in furnishing the room. In the north end of the living room is a cove for a future piano with a lattice-paned window above. A gilded grill, around which the Lairs plan to build a bookcase, forms a slight separation between the two rooms.

In the dining room is Shay's pride and joy, a lamp fixture from Italy. And, well . . . I don't know how to describe it, but it surely is pretty. I do know it is of interlacing black iron wire around crystal-clear glass shaped like grape-clusters. It's handmade, and when twirled it reflects shimmering diamond lights.

The doors in the house are of louvered paneling. Shay said they were very pleased with them because they allow circulation of heat even when the doors are closed.

The exterior of the house is of Early American style with window shutters and red brick and porch posters. The posters were carved at the college. Exterior wood was painted a color that is a mixture of brown and gray, or the color of seasoned shingles which they have planned to blend with the shingles after they age.

One of the most marked impressions I received while visiting in the house was the fine blending of colors and textures. They chose textures such as grass weave and burlap weave and complimenting colors of shades of brown, green and red, warm and vibrating against the smooth nomad.

And that's where the T. H. Lairs live.

The "baking corner" of Shay Lair's kitchen, with the built-in range at left, the 39-inch high counter all around and the rolling table in the foreground.

I declare Mother Nature is confused. She must have turned over two pages of her calendar instead of one. It's so much like spring that even the trees and other plants are thinking about dressing up for it. In fact the forsythia in front of the house just quit thinking about it, and did blossom out in yellow organdy, and it might be wishing soon that it has dressed in wool instead.

Piano Fund Drive Now Completed

The Music Club of Happy successfully completed recently a piano fund drive for a $1,000 Grande piano to be used in the Happy Elementary School auditorium.

Last year at this time, the Music Club voted to begin the fund. By May, $500 had been raised for a down payment, and the Grande piano was purchased in time for the closing activities of the school. Recently the final payment was made.

Mrs. Lonnie Todd, president of the club, feels that not only the club members but others in the community made great effort toward the completion of the project by working in numerous money raising activities or supporting the activities.

Besides personal donations, money was raised by baked food sales and rummage sales. The Happy school system donated an old piano as a trade-in.

"It took everyone to raise the money. Our thanks and appreciation for helping reach the final goal within a year of its origin," Mrs. Todd said.

AUSTIN—Gangland tactics of feeding black bass and immunity of fish to noise at shallow depths are reported by Texas Game and Fish aquatic divers in their studies to familiarize anglers with secrets of the deep and to improve fishing luck.

Marion Toole, the chief aquatic biologist for the commission, said the noise observations, particularly as concerns the increasing popularity of motorboats, "may provoke some adjusted attitudes toward surface disturbances and their effect on fishing."

He suggested for "more entertaining reading" the reports made by Aquatic Biologist John E. Tilton, assistant project chief, on observations in Lake Travis of the Highland Lakes chain about one kind of fish preying on another.

Tilton wrote that black bass seemed to use organized gangster tactics in rounding up some elusive perch. He stated: "Two small black bass were seen feeding on a school of Rio Grande fry. Five or six of the fry became separated from the main school and sought cover in a small patch of vegetation approximately one foot in diameter. The two bass took stations on opposite sides of the vegetation patch and waited. As the perch fry left the cover to rejoin the main group, they were instantly captured by one or another of the bass."

The diving technicians, who penetrate to depths of as much as 100 feet, noted "It appears strange to see the predator and prey species sometimes existing so harmoniously together until some spark sets off a feeding splurge when many of the prey species are devoured."

They added: "Other instances have shown small black bass slicing viciously through schools of Rio Grande perch fry, taking one or two with each dash. While the bass are actively feeding, the young are frantically seeking cover in moss or crevices.

"Suddenly, when the bass becomes glutted or stop feeding, the perch fry leave cover, congregate again into a compact group and move on, often side by side with the bass which had been feeding on the school."

Concerning surface noises, Tilton's crew wrote: "A ten-horse power outboard motor is used frequently in the diving areas while observations are in progress. No difference in numbers of fish seen or general activity can be seen during periods of extensive use of the motor and periods when the motor is not in use. On one occasion the boat was run at full speed back and forth over a test area.

"The fish in the area completely ignored the motor noise and continued normal activities . . . Other surface sounds are believed to have little effect on fish activity. The fish observed completely ignored common surface sounds as movement in the boat, talking by helpers on the surface, and even low flying jet aircraft."

Below surface noises actually attracted fish, noted the divers, who reported "It was noticed that certain fish could be enticed within inches of the diving team by tapping two small rocks together . . . Although most species appear curious only, the longear sunfish seems to be infuriated by the tapping sound and would often viciously and repeatedly attack the rocks. . ."

"In addition to the rocks, a small metal can containing steel bolts was sealed and used as a noise producer. By shaking the can, a drum-like noise was produced which could be heard distinctly at a range of 100 feet . . . Obvious interest was shown by bass, sunfish, and Rio Grande perch."
